

FOR THE MC INTRODUCING LORNE TO A SOUTH AFRICAN AUDIENCE:

Thank you for booking me to speak at your event. In order for me to give the most possible value to your audience, my presentation is structured around the introduction below in bold to please be read verbatim to the audience by whomever is introducing me on the day. Thank you in anticipation of it being read out exactly as follows please.

Kind regards,

-Lorne

- Our speaker today, Lorne Sulcas, has been inspiring top organisations, entrepreneurs and athletes around the globe on performance since 1996, including US giants such as NASA, Sony Music and AT&T; and the likes of Bosch Siemens, Woolworths, and ABSA in South Africa.
- Lorne is happily married to Heidi, has a son and a teenage daughter, he drives a double-cab diesel bakkie, eats large amounts of chocolate, is a very average surfer – he says he’s just a pretty normal guy. But he has a pretty unusual perspective:
- After years in the corporate jungle as a respected leadership trainer, he sold everything, walked away and moved to the bush to follow his passion.
- For more than two decades now since his years as a long-time game ranger-guide in the Kruger National Park area, Lorne has been tracking and photographing Africa’s wildlife in the oldest and most enduring marketplace: Nature.
- Today Lorne’s going to share with us his expertise, experience and some of his internationally awarded photography, in his unique keynote Thriving in a Wild World™: Powerful Success Lessons from Africa’s Big Cats - sustaining growth, teamwork and results in the face of change and competition.

Helping us to thrive in our wild world, please help me welcome international speaker, Big Cat Guy and wanna-be-Husband-of-the-Year, Lorne Sulcas.
